I moved out of Canberra six months ago because I believe it had lost its direction. It was a bush capitol, but now due to absolute stupidity in planning it has lost its way and identity,

The congestion already on roads around Fyshwick the break up of road surfaces being unable to repair roads, such as wentworth avenue has been a goat track for years.

I realise that of all the planning that has been put forward this would probably have to be the most idiotic and I beg/plead think where you are taking Canberra
