That's cloaking any dissension in planning jargon, which is how you get round and get away with bad & unpopular public infrastructure decisions & has nothing to do with plain common sense. There's plenty of land available for a proper waste recycling facility in this territory but not slap bang in the middle of a commercial area. It just shows scant thought for the businesses that operate & wish to prosper in Fyshwick. Muddled bureaucratic fiddling with real working people who have to make & present a pleasant CLEAN place to attract the general public to & conduct their many varied businesses. Has that crossed your minds in any way.

Get your act together for the greater ACT and plan accordingly
